Dear Glen and Gill,

CLASS DETERMINATION Photo Max

The Agricultural Compounds and Veterinary Medicines Group has completed a class determination for the above named product based on the information provided by the applicant.

Determination

This product is defined as an agricultural compound under the ACVM Act 1997.

This product is defined as a plant compound under the ACVM Act 1997

This product is exempt under the ACVM Regulations 2001 and Amendments and subject to the conditions in Schedule 1

This product does not require registration under the ACVM Act to be imported, marketed, distributed or sold in New Zealand.

Rationale

This product is intended for direct management of plants in an agricultural context. It is therefore defined as a plant compound. However, as the product is clearly identified as a homeopathic plant compound, the product is exempt under the ACVM Regulations 2001, Schedule 1.

Details of the ACVM regulations 2001 and Amendments may be found on our website at <http://www.nzfsa.govt.nz/acvm/legislation/index.htm>

This class determination becomes invalid if:

1. This product is changed in any way.
2. This product is advertised using information different from that assessed in the process of this class determination.
3. Three years has elapsed since the date of this class determination.
4. You do not comply with the conditions stated in the ACVM Regulations 2001

This Class Determination letter must be presented to MAF Quarantine Services in order to release the above named product if it is being imported.

Although the ACVM Group does not have regulatory interest in the product, you may still have statutory obligations under the Hazardous Substances and New Organisms Act 1996 and Biosecurity Act 1993. Please refer to ERMA NZ and the MAF Biosecurity Division respectively at www.ermanz.govt.nz or www.maf.govt.nz/biosecurity for further information.

Yours sincerely
